The Editor's Page

Many thanks are due to all those who contributed their talents and time to the 1995-1996 yearbook. I'd like to use this space to recognize their help.

❖To Julie Barry: for serving as assistant editor and her help with planning and layout design.

❖To Drew Gruenhagen: for all his work as photo coordinator for the year book.

❖To Marisa Jeffers: for her support as well as all her help with proofs.

❖To Mike Hackleman: Our Josten's Representative- thanks for all his help, patience and espically his support.

❖To Tim Masenthin: for all his help with layouts, specifically with theater pages.

❖To Jolene Siebarth: for her designs and willingness to help and to all those who contributed an article, a caption, a photo or an encouraging word I give my thanks.

Sincerely,

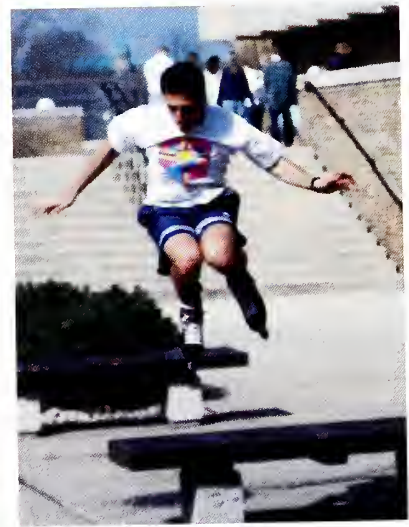

Jennifer D. Eckert-Editor

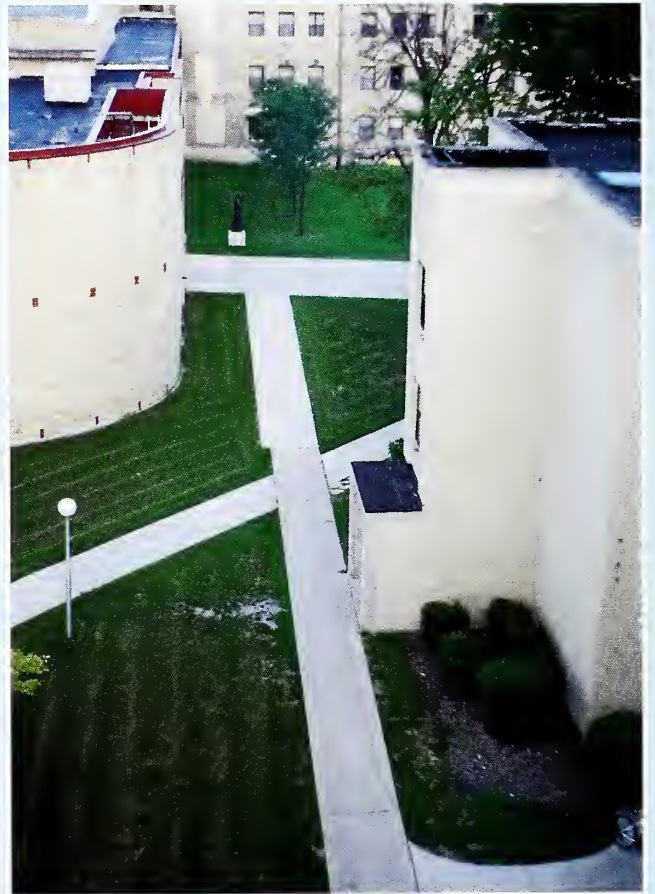

We Are the Light of the World

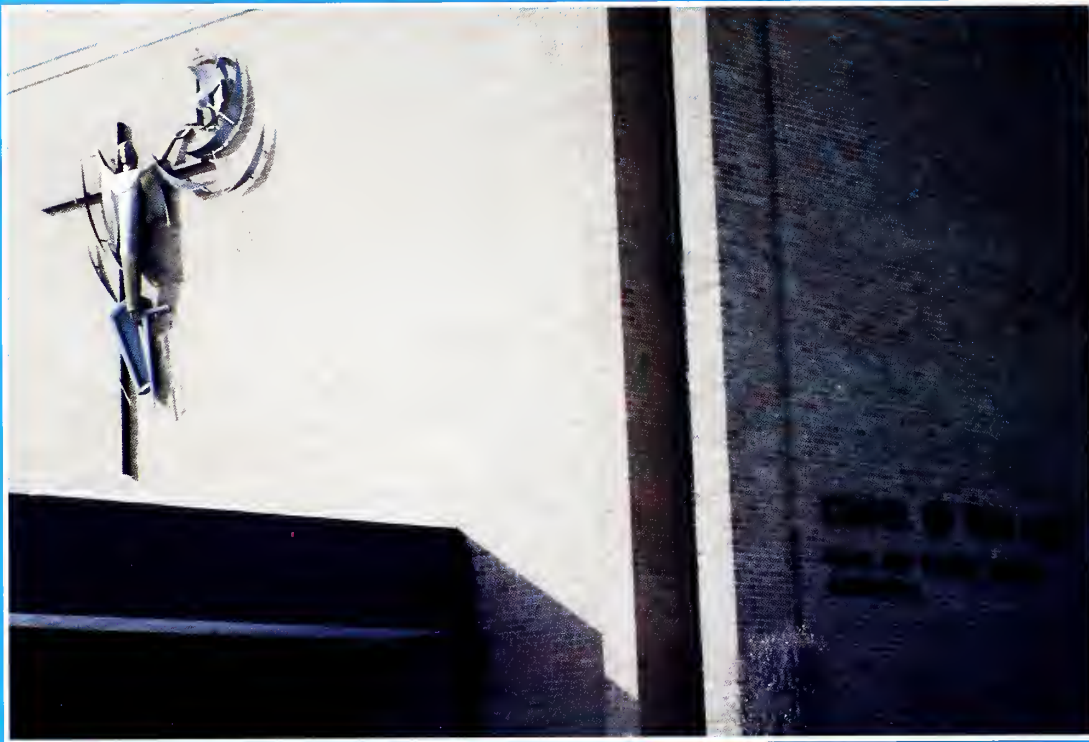

We chose this theme with the idea that Concordia has a mission for its students. The student handbook and the first packet of new student information both have a copy of Concordia's official mission statement. We chose the title of the 1995-1996 yearbook because we felt these words describe that mission. We are to be the light of the world through everything we do at Concordia, from sports to art. Whether our goal is to enter the ministry or the business world, in both cases the goal of sharing the word of God still applies and can be shown through our actions as well as our words. God's blessings on each and every one of you as you strive to make your life one which spreads the light of Christ.

And We Were...

Sought by the Spirit

The Village people sure look a lot like Camp Staffers Chad Hoover, John Weidler, Drew Gruenhagen, Bob Cohrs, and Andy Kennell. Freshman Camp is so unpredictable. Who would have guessed the Village people would come perform. One more reason to "Go to Camp!!!"

Imagine getting excited about running up and down the stairs of Gross Hall a million times in one day. This is the feeling the staffers have the day the new students arrive.

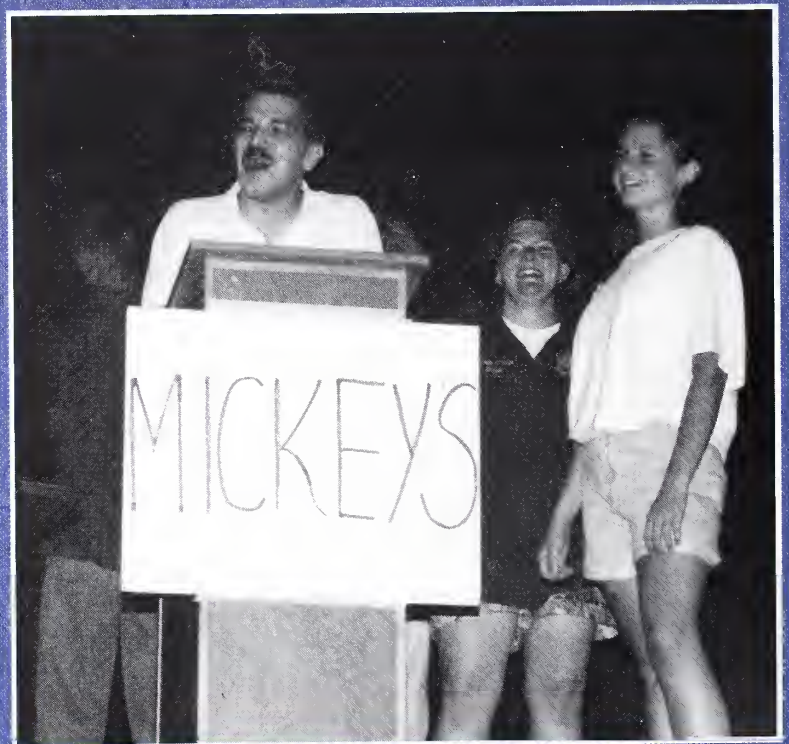

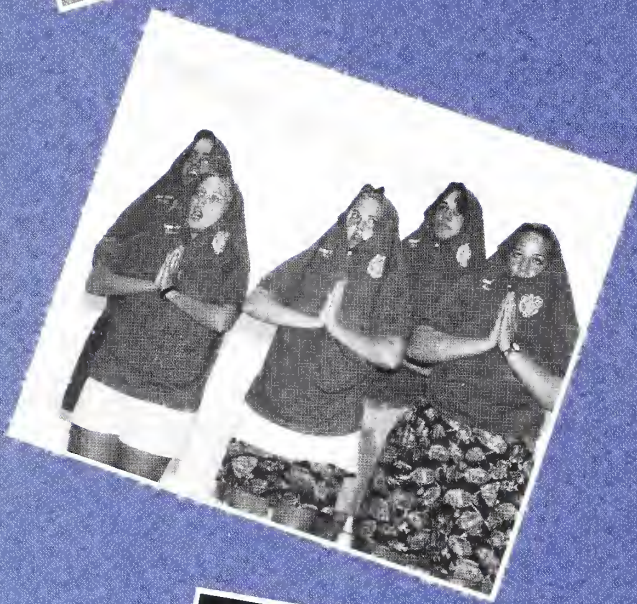

Five days before the new students came, the staffers moved themselves in. After what seems like an endless summer these staffers are energetic and anxious to welcome the new students. The first day the staffers got together in their individual staffs, and then they came all together to be briefed by Marisa Jeffers. During the meeting it was stressed that O-Week was to help the new students bond with Concordia and to help these new students grow. Those were our goals. We wanted O-Week to be one of the new students best experiences at Concordia. We wanted to make them feel at home.

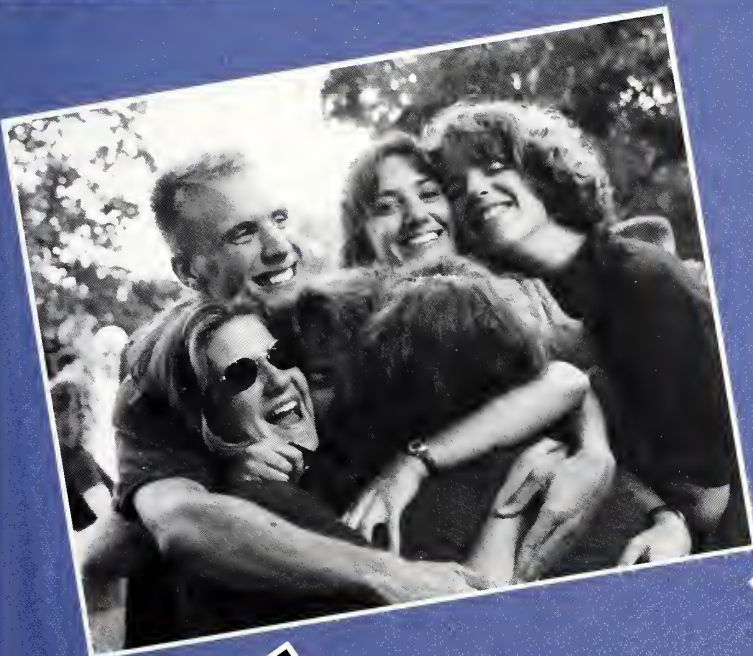

Not only was O-Week exciting for the new students, but also for the staffers. "O-Week not only was good for the new students, but it was one of the best times of my life also," said Kristi Berg, a transfer staffer.

How did these staffers get to sit in KCC while the others get to move the new students in? Staffers Mary LaPorte, Chris Rennison, Rachel Johnson, Stephanie Nyberg, Mark Dahn, and Judy Benson all envy those staffers at Gross right then!!

Transfer staffers Will Zambole "the perplexed male", Lisa Margenfeldt "the nosy tree", and Schawn Schockman "the forever in love female," all make the new students laugh at the Transfer Skit Show.

park v. to place or leave an automobile (etc) standing for a time as on a street.

"Com-mut'er, n. - One who travels a long distance on a regular basis." That is the Webster definition of a commuter - one of the many versions of the definition. Some of us travel far, while others of us travel only a couple of blocks. No matter how far we travel or what kind of lives we lead at home, we all come together as equals in education. We all have some sort of drive or motivation that brings us to River Forest (and/or Oak Park for those in the nursing program) for that education. But we don't only come together to learn, we come together to have fun as well. As a freshman, I came to know a lot of people, especially fellow commuters, as we would hang out in the Cougar Den between classes to eat, do homework, and chat. As a sophomore, some of my commuter friends became residents and some continued to gather in our "hangout." One thing is for sure, we got to know more people and our group grew. Now I am a junior. I don't make it to the fireplace as much as I used to (due to busier and more unique schedules), but every time I go there I am greeted by a new addition to our ever-growing group. Sometimes it is a bit overwhelming trying to remember names and faces, but I find it enjoyable to talk to someone from a different place with a different lifestyle and different experiences (I hear some great bus stories at times!). Next year, I'll be a senior and I am looking forward to the new faces I'll see and the new stories I'll hear. I might not be around much, but I know someone will always be there! No matter who you are or where you're from, there's always a place for you, so stop by the fireplace sometime!!

Now in summary of the commuter events this year: We had a very active commuter senator and a commuter concerns committee made up of students, faculty, and administration to contemplate commuter issues and try to boost commuter activity in school activities. We got a commuter lounge in lower level KCC where students can study in peace (hopefully!). Also, we made commuter T-shirts once again! They came out well. Start thinking of ideas for next year!! Until next time.....Peace!

Homecoming 1995

THE HOMECOMING HOLIDAYS

Spirit Week, October 8 through October 15, is a special time at Concordia for several reasons. First, it gives students a reason to dress up and act crazy all in the name of "school spirit." Secondly, it marks the time of Homecoming: the coronation of the queen, the big football game, and perhaps most importantly, the dance. The contests held during the beginning of the week gave students the opportunity to "let loose." Jamila Robinson, the Special Events Officer commented that, "while not that many students participated in the contests held during Spirit Week those that did had a good time." The creative contests were lighthearted in nature ranging from eating jalapeno peppers and pies to decorating dorm floors and creating beards out of cheetos. However, the contests were only one aspect of spirit week. Students were also encouraged to show "school spirit" by wearing different combinations of clothes, even their pyjamas!! However, the clear highlights of the week were the queen's coronation on Friday and the football game and the dance on Saturday.

Coronation is always eagerly anticipated by students. Each coronation also has historical significance, blending tradition with contemporary practices by passing the crown from the old ruler to the new ruler. This year Lori Aukamp Clayton, recent Concordia graduate, had the honor of giving away her crown to Beth Briele, a senior at Concordia. The coronation was followed by a brief reception in the K.C.C. lounge giving friends and family a chance to congratulate the new queen.

The Homecoming game and dance capped off the entire week. The football game on Saturday was followed by a festive dance held in lower level K.C.C. with the theme, "Some Enchanted Evening," and twinkling stars to reflect the "Starry, Starry Night." Altogether, the special events during Spirit Week 1995 made it a week that students will treasure in years to come.

The Homecoming Court

On the evening of Friday, October 13, 1995, Concordia University-River Forest was proud to crown its new Homecoming Queen: Beth Briele. Beth hails from Garden City, New York, where she lived with her parents Ronald and Frances, younger sister Diane (who is taller than Beth...despite their 14 month age difference!), and her grandmother Nellie Stachel.

Beth is currently a senior in the Director of Christian Education program here at Concordia. Beth's roommate Heather Hemler says that Beth "is always willing to be there to help out, or to pick up the extra work that needs to be done." That is partly why Beth is such a good representative of Concordia. Heather also says that "the love of God can continually be seen through Beth, and her actions, as she daily lives her life for Him."

She has also been an active member of several extracurricular activities, such as the Kapelle and the CYM teams "Praise" and "Living Water" for all four years. Beth says "my favorite thing to do is sing—but not just sing, sing praises to God. Kapelle and CYM are two completely different styles of music. It goes from Bach to pop, but each provides a means of expression of faith and a chance to share it with others." She has also served as the Student Association Spiritual Life Office for the past two years. Congratulations Beth, and God's Blessings!

Did you go to Homecoming last year? Spring Formal? Any special event? If so, then it was thanks in part to Jamila Robinson, who has served as the Student Association Special Events Officer for the last two years. Jamila says that she loves both the challenge and the "breathtaking accomplishments" that her office provides. Jamila has also performed as part of the Wind Symphony, and one of her best memories of CURF occurred on Spring Tour, "going to a ski resort and being talked onto a pair of skis for the very first time without any lessons. Need I say that I will never get on another pair of skis again?"

Jamila, from Bellwood, Illinois also comes from a large family—Dad and Mom, McArthur and Ann Robinson, older brother and sister Donnell and Quintina, and younger sibs Omari and Aisha. Also in the family are two Doberman Pinschers, Copper and Sabrina, and a cat, Precious.

"Jamila is loving, caring, giving, and she is also a very energetic and enthusiastic person," says Felicia Daniels, her close friend. As a student enrolled in the nursing program, these traits, along with Jamila's dependability and respectability will serve her well.

Imagine growing up on a farm surrounded by cats, dogs, chickens, five little brothers and sisters, and a goat. Such was the childhood of Sarah Helmreich, who was born and raised in Bay City, MI. Sarah has been very active at Concordia, and has used her outgoing personality and inherent craziness to her advantage as a member of Freshman "O"-Staff. Together with Dann Schuth, Sarah directed the O-staff this year. "Three years on staff have been fabulous. The opportunity to be crazy and uninhibited and taking advantage of being an organized group to meet new students and genuinely welcome them to CURF...were/are incredible. "O"-staff is an awesome ministry."

Her close friend Schawn Schockmann points out Sarah's "constant joy and laughter." "Her genuine care for people touches all those around her and makes her stand out as someone you want to befriend." Sarah has used her desire to reach out to others in order to spread the Word by singing in the Kapelle and performing as part of the CYM group "Praise." Sarah's role models include Heidi Meyers, who "demonstrates a consistent Christian faith in her daily life."

Joy Suzanne Buchheimer could be described as the perfect Concordia student. An active athlete and Resident Assistant, Joy enjoys staying up late to hang out and talk with friends, yet is too self-conscious to reveal the most outrageous thing she's ever done at CURF. Joy comes from a tradition of Concordia students, since both of her parents came here to River Forest. Joy also has two siblings, brother Matt and sister Brooke.

Joy also enjoys the chance to turn her thoughts inward. She describes the weekly service of Compline as "a chance to focus on God and spill your guts out to Him in a quiet, peaceful church." Connie Reinert says "Joy is an outgoing, caring person." As a nursing student, Joy will have a chance to show her caring nature.

As part of the women's volleyball team, Joy gains "fun friendships, and a feeling of being a part of something."

Standing in the spotlight is no new experience for Angela Meg Smith. Angie sings in the Kapelle, and is quite active in the theater and ACT. "Kapelle is a great way to witness to people while doing what I love." In addition to singing the praises of God, Angie also loves to act. Since coming to Concordia, Angie has performed in a number of productions, most recently the 1995 Spring musical, "Godspell."

Angie is from Shawano, WI, and is the youngest of three children. She has two older sisters, Julie and Sara. Angie's parents are both teachers at St. James Lutheran in Shawano.

Angie's friends know that she is always herself. Always cheerful, Angela has the wonderful gift of being able to make the most depressed person smile. Very giving of herself, Angela is also a strong leader. She is academically and socially involved and a strong Christian witness. Her many talents and outgoing personality will serve her well wherever she ends up.

Leadership and dedication are two primary themes in the life of Kathy Rae Palmreuter. She gets the chance to show her skills as a valuable member of the Women's Volleyball team here at CURF. "Volleyball is an awesome sport to play. My teammates have made the sport fun and enjoyable...many lasting friendships were made by being on the volleyball team together." Hank Hoffmann says "Kathy may not say a lot of inspiring words, but her actions influence others to follow the example she sets. Kathy hopes to one day be a coach, and has been inspired by Mara Schmidt, coach of the varsity volleyball team."

As well as being a dedicated leader, Kathy's friends know her to be a caring person. "Kathy will go out of her way to help both those who ask for help and those who don't, but need it...in ten years, see Kathy as a dedicated teacher, a mother and loving wife. She will be more successful than she can now imagine because of her faith and love."

Kathy is from Vassar, MI, and being the youngest of six may have taught her rambunctiousness. She recalls one especially memorable time at dinner freshman year—"We started flinging ice cream at each other with our spoons...then we decided to have a contest to see who could shoot their ice cream highest on the wall."

Lori Lynn Dobberfuhl, from Mequon, Wisconsin, is majoring in Early Childhood education with specialization in Psychology. Her career choice is a good one, because Lori has a great love for children. Says Bob Cohrs "Lori...has a desire to share with children all the joys of the world." Lori is an extraordinarily caring person, and a blessing to all the fortunate to have her for a friend.

Sarah Smith was born in Bay City, Michigan. After living in Reed City for ten years, she and her family moved to Fort Wayne, Indiana, where they have lived for the last ten and a half years. Sarah is an Early Childhood major specializing in English and hopes to one day be a volleyball coach. Her inspiration has been Mara Schmidt, the coach of the volleyball team here at CURF. Sarah has played on the team since 1993. She also enjoys intramural sports as a chance to bond with her floor. Her favorite memories of Concordia are with her floor "having marshmallow wars, decorating for the holidays, talking until all hours of the night, and harassing our R.A."

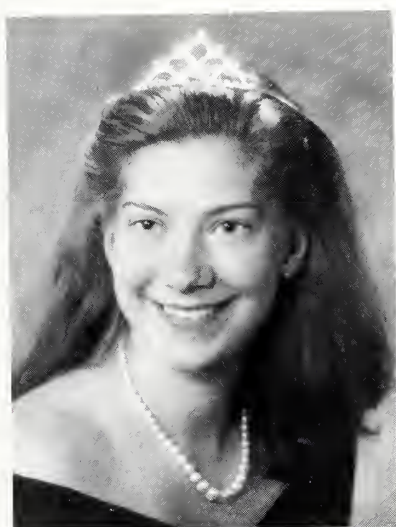

Sarah's friend Susan Michael, says that Sarah is very honest. "If you ever need to know if your shirt looks good with your outfit, ask Sarah—she will tell you the truth!" Along with a genuine personality, Sarah also has a great sense of humor. "Sarah's humor is not just verbal, but incorporates her facial expressions and overall body language. Sarah can make anyone laugh. Overall, Sarah is a great person that you gotta love."

Macbeth

The 1995-'96 theater season began with a classic: Shakespeare's Macbeth. Phil Nardulli, a veteran director for Concordia productions, presented this Scottish play with his usual imaginative flair. The musical score, written and arranged by Marty Sirvatka specifically for this show, enhanced the production by effectively setting the haunting mood of the play.

The invitation to perform at Concordia College, St. Paul, Minnesota was another exciting aspect of being a part of this cast. The Lutheran Theater Festival celebrated the opening of the new theater building at St. Paul Nardulli overcame the difficulty of performing the outdoor fight scenes through an effective use of lighting and staging, using curtains sectioned off like column and round platforms to separate scenes. He encountered another challenge in staging by having to plan for the stage up at St. Paul.

Nardulli, in another imaginative move, added the character(s) of The Hauntings, an innovation on the original play. The Hauntings added a swirling element of mystery and mood in their ghostly dances and poses. Because of the large number of characters, many of the actors were asked to assume multiple roles and therefore, multiple costumes.

There were solid performance by all the actors with especially memorable performances by Vanessa Wedgbury, Victoria Griebel, Allison Sohr (the three witches), Dann Schuth (Macbeth), Tricia Morris (Lady Macbeth) Jon Zehnder (Banquo) and Prof. Karl Sorenson (King Duncan and Old Man).

Peter Shaffer's

Black Comedy

Are you afraid of the dark?

For most people the fears of having the lights out are left behind in childhood. Wild imaginations of spooky shadows and seeing things that are not really there are coaxed into reality with age.

Black Comedy, the winter student-directed, one-act play, showed that dark is not that different in the adult world and demonstrated what mayhem can ensue when the lights go out.

The world of starving artist, Brindsley Miller (Jeff Quest), as seen by director Daniel Schuth, is falling to pieces. To prove that he can earn a living, Miller and his fiancée, Carol Melkett (Paige Craig) invite Carol's father, Colonel Melkett (Phil Grimpso) and millionaire George Bamburger (John Zehnder) to view some of his art work one evening. Before the guests even arrive a power outage reveals more than could be seen in the light.

Brindsley's personal nightmare unfolds as the different players in his life decide to make an appearance. Neighbors, Miss Furnival (Jennifer Jones) and Harold Gorringer (Andy Holubeck), come to visit along with not-so-ex-girlfriend Clea (Mary Laporte). Schuppanzigh (Tim Eisman), the electrician also comes to fix the fuse, but stays to do more harm than good.

According to Quest, Miller is a guy "just trying to survive," despite stealing Gorringer's furniture and juggling two girlfriends in the dark. Throughout the evening, Miller falls down the stairs, has his ears pulled, water thrown in his face, and other bits of physical comedy show his efforts to survive.

To transport the audience to the setting in London, England the cast worked hard to develop British accents. Scott Schuth worked with the ensemble to help authenticate the performance.

A requirement to be cast in the one-act is that an actor cannot have been in more than three A.C.T. productions. This encouraged newcomers Holubeck, Jones, and Craig to the stage. "I have worked on past lighting crews, and now I have much more respect for the actors," said Jones, "they have the toughest time and must give so much to the production."

The fact that Schuth is a student has not gotten in the way of his director's role. Zehnder, his roommate, says that he respects Dann the way he would any director. Craig, a freshman, said it was very beneficial to have her Concordia acting debut with a student director, because Schuth knows where she has been. "He's fun. He helps me feel more comfortable, especially since I'm the youngest (cast member)," said Craig.

Schuth, who has been in theatre for seven years and has acted in fifteen shows, says he loves the relationships that he has built with his cast members. "We teach each other. Their creative ideas enhance my vision of direction," said Schuth.

Coup in City Hall!

Citizens of the town formerly known as Ottoville, welcome to the new order. As former first deputy of Otto the Official (played by Josh Thurbee), I bring the news that Otto has resigned as the town's only mayor, police chief, judge, banker, lawyer, food inspector and license seller. His hold over this city is now over. Before he resigned, Otto repealed all of the "Orange Laws" that have deprived us of every color but orange. The alphabet, clocks and calendars shall follow those of the outside world, which you are now free to visit. No one shall be forced to accept a label rather than a last name.

You may thank the brave art student Ellen Johnson (Mellisa Honn) for bringing the ideas of respect and toleration back to Ottoville. She has forced us all to admit that we held to the former system only out of fear as Otto's threats were as meaningless as my unloaded gun. She enlisted the help of my daughter Rozella the Rebellious (Jennifer Dennis) to escape from execution. Rozella was inspired by a book from the time before all books but Otto's were banned, preserved by my wife Quilla the Quiet (Tiffany Reed). My other daughter Stacia the Silly (Renee Grotelueschen) overcame her silliness and sensibly suggested that we put Otto in the Ottomat (stocks) until he accepted all the colors. Even I, Peter the Prudent (Paul Hosea) was at last convinced of the hollowness of our lives under Otto, symbolized by Ellen's painting of Otto showing nothing but an orange blob-which is now on display in the town square.

I beg of you, citizens, to show compassion to the renamed Otto Oats, to me, and all who worked for the former tyranny. We have been acting out of ignorance, and now know better. God's blessings to all on this glorious day in the newly named town of Etcetera!

REPORT OF MULTIPLE ECTOPLASMIC MANIFESTATIONS PRODUCED BY A PSYCHIC OBJECT

Mr. Emsworth, London Psychical Research Society,

I feel it is my duty to report an incident of most extraordinary complexity and amazing circumstance. The whole business began when Mr. Charles Condomine invited me to his home in Kent to conduct a seance. There were five parties present: Mr. Charles Condomine, his wife Ruth Condomine, Mrs. Violet Bradman, Dr. George Bradman, and I. After a most delicious dinner and a number of excellently dry martinis, the work began. After instructing my subjects, I entered a trance. When I awoke, I was informed that my efforts were futile. There had been no manifestations of any sort.

A few days later, I was summoned by Mrs. Condomine for an interview. During said interview, I learned that there had indeed been a manifestation of Mr. Condomine's first wife, Elvira, a lovely young lady. She was visible only to her husband and, as Mrs. Condomine put it, "Extremely audible." I was also surprised to find that Elvira had passed over seven years ago, which clearly makes her a waiting list candidate whose number finally came up! Mrs. Condomine expressed an extreme interest in having this manifestation removed from her home. I was unsure how to go about this. Mrs. Condomine became very hostile making any further inquiry impossible.

My next interview was with Mr. Charles Condomine. During this interview I had the privilege of an encounter with Elvira's manifestation. What a marvelous encounter it was! I proceeded to attempt an exorcism using a formula from Edmonson's Witchcraft and its Byways. I followed this with a seance and a trance which succeeded only in materializing his second wife, Ruth. Well, now we were really in a fix. After a number of trances, seances and other exhausting methods of removal, the ladies, Charles and I were all exasperated. Then it finally hit me! The Sudbury Case! I won't bore you with the details but will conclude my report by saying that both women are happy and Mr. Condomine is planning a holiday. If you have any questions please feel free to contact me. I shall be happy to fill you in on the loose ends.

Respectfully Submitted,

Madame Arcati

Theater

The American Dream

Since I am easily categorized as a theater junkie I looked forward to seeing this show. So I went, but without knowing quite what to expect. My reaction can be summarized in two words: "wow." and "what?" I was told before going to the show that it fit in the category "the Theater of the Absurd." I have to agree. I also have to say that the actors did an excellent job, making me believe they didn't find their own lines or actions the least bit extraordinary, unusual, or extreme, from Mrs. Barker removing her dress to Grandma's description of the mutilation of the infant. I believe, however, that they achieved their purpose, forcing me to reevaluate my preconception of what is my "American Dream".

In his director's notes Phil Nardulli had this to say: "In our preparation of the two works we present tonight, The American Dream and The Zoo Story, we have spent an almost equal amount of time discussing the nature of these works as we have spent rehearsing them. In many cases, we have agreed to disagree with the author's point of view, while still making every attempt to present that point of view as the author intended, leaving the final judgment to your debate. This is the true definition of a work of art and an artist's function within our society: To stimulate and motivate our audience to action." Thank you Phil. I for one, enjoyed the show.

The Zoo Story

Cast

Peter.....Karl Sorenson
Jerry.....Philip F. Nardulli

The Zoo Story followed as the second of the two acts performed that March weekend in Bergman Theater. The light and ironic symbolism in The American Dream contrasted starkly with the desperate loneliness in The Zoo Story. The characters never left the park, yet as viewers, we rode Jerry's roller coaster of emotions, laughing at his grim humor, aching at his desperation. Phil Nardulli and Karl Sorenson first performed this undeniably powerful piece of theater together here at Concordia in 1976 followed by over 100 more performances over the next 10 years. I feel fortunate to have caught this, their 20th anniversary and probably their final performance.

Once Upon a Mattress

The show opened with a minstrel relating the traditional tale of the princess and the pea. From there however, the story that progressed had its own particular twists. This year's musical featured a variety of vocal talents, a chorus line, a rainbow of costumes, an enormous cast, and a very funny story. In the end the Princess (Fred) did win the Prince but to do so she had to swim the moat, survive his mother, and pass his mother's impossible test: feel a single pea under 20 mattress.

(top left) Winnifred climbs the ladder to the top of the pile of 20 mattress. (top right) Members of the court raise their glasses in a toast the palace ball. (below right) The jester stares intently at the hourglass as all but the queen and wizard wait hopefully for Princess #13 to pass the queen's test.

The Foreigner

The Foreigner, directed by Daniel Schuth, gave Concordia students the novelty of a summer production. For the relatively few students remaining on campus for summer jobs or classes, this comedy by Larry Shue was a welcome break from the routine. Students sympathized with the sticky predicaments of Charlie Baker, played by Tim Hardy, as he unwillingly assumed the role of a foreigner because of a brilliant scheme (to get around his shyness) devised by his friend Froggy LeSueur, played by Gabrielle Howard, which involved pretending to speak no English. Betty Meeks' relentless pursuit of her conviction that "the foreigner" could be made to understand English if one only talked loud enough, combined with her inspired Georgian accent, made laughs abound throughout the performance. The villains in this show, Rev. Lee and Owen Musser (played by Tige Culbertson and Josh Brown) demonstrated bigotry and hatred enough to make a real clan member envious. The convincingly delivered pivotal speech, where David Lee reveals his devious scheme, captivated the audience in awed fascination that one person could hate so much. Despite his "strange talk" (The bees come down!) and strange ways (recall, for those of you who can, the cup on his forehead at breakfast, not to mention the chicken dance) Charlie's concern for Betty, Catherine, and Ellard was perhaps not so foreign after all. Schuth, while working with a smaller cast, produced an excellent show, well worth the three times I attended.

The Calling

Christina and Carmina stop to pose while setting up for the nurses banquet in August. This is a time when new nursing students can ask questions and mingle with the returning nursing students.

The hours are long, the demands many, The studies are hard, overbearing still, something deep within drives you to pursue this path This inner calling which sometimes leave you doubtful, questioning. Wondering why you strive to achieve this purpose. Until you recall the lives of those you touch. The elderly man whose life is waning, The newborn fresh with new life and hope. The grateful gentleman who called you an angel. The frightened teenager, who reached for your hand in comfort. The worried parent concerned over their child's cold. The battered child with large wondering eyes. The destitute family who looks to you for comfort. How can one explain this calling, with so many facets, so little time. But, perhaps, when it's over and the Master inquires what you've done with your life. When you answer, "I am a Nurse," His embrace will make it all worth while.

Student Association Executive Committee

If one word could describe the Executive Committee, it would be service. The elected members of the Excom served the students in many different capacities, representing them in committees ranging from student rights to Homecoming planning. Along with the Student Senate, the Excom tackled such issues as intervisitation, fee increases, 24-hour lounges, and many other concerns that students brought before it. Not always an easy task, the members of the Excom served in their offices with skill and dedication.

Fish Out of Water, directed by Lori Siekmann, is an old group under a new name. This year-long ministry group, formally known as Players I.N.C. wanted a title which clearly explained their purpose as a group dedicated to Christian Ministry through drama. Drawing on the Christ's proclamation "I will make you fishers of men." as well as the association with baptism they became Fish Out of Water. This group performs their dramatic scenes for daily chapel and campus fellowship as well as presenting some chapel services for local grade schools.

CONCORDIA COUGARS CAP FOOTBALL SEASON

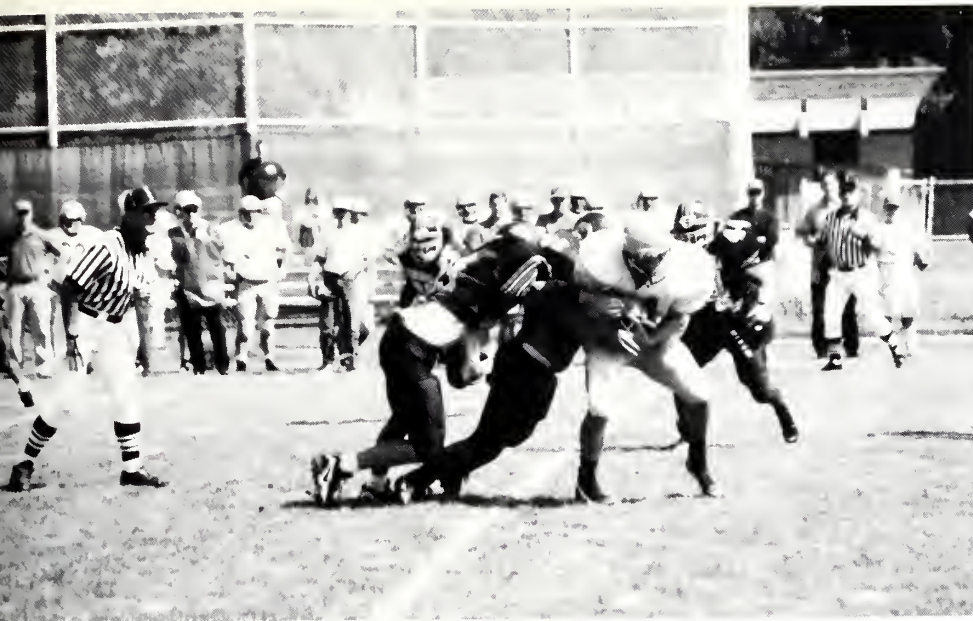

Although the Cougars may not have had the most successful season, both players and Coach Braun agreed that it was a definite "learning experience." As Charles Alexander, the team's quarterback, maintained "The team was young but talented and I expect them to improve next year." Initially, the Cougars started the season off with a blazing victory over Maranassa at home. However, as the year wore on the team experienced defeat after defeat, undermining the team's confidence in themselves. Although some members of the team became discouraged, Charles Alexander said that the upperclassmen and coaches continued to provide strong leadership to the team by working hard in practice and during the games. Scott Moore, a senior, also felt that the seniors were able to set a good example for the freshmen not only through their words but their dedication as players. However, despite the coaches' and the seniors' efforts the team was unable to break its consecutive losing streak ending the season with a record of 1 and 8.

Charles Alexander, Scott Moore, and Duane Bowen all attributed the team's lack of success to the "large number of inexperienced freshmen." According to Charles Alexander, the team was composed of 52 people, 30 of which were freshmen. Duane Bowen, a freshman, commented that, "the competition in college is more intense than in high school and the guys are faster and tougher than in high school." However, Charles Alexander firmly believes that next year the Concordia Cougars will be a much better team. Scott Moore echoed his sentiments stating, "Going 1 and 8 may have not been what we wanted but the experience we gained was invaluable." Indeed, if practice does make perfect, Moore may be right after all. Besides there is always next year.

As Tami Kimball digs for the ball teammate Beth Pride is ready to assist if needed.

The Cougar volleyball season was both exciting and enjoyable for the players, coaches, and fans. On many occasions, the Cougar spirit was alive waiting to cheer the team on to victory. Cougar volleyball games became a high priority for much of Concordia's faculty, staff, and students. The gym could be seen filled by Concordia's high spirited fans cheering their favorite team on to victory.

The volleyball home matches were exciting due to the "never give up" attitude of the players, coaches, and fans. This desire to win paced the team to victory throughout the season. These many victories led them to not only NIIC conference champions but also undefeated in the conference.

Although the season ended on a triumphant note, it could have met some higher expectations of the players and coaches. The Cougars faced a few struggles throughout the season with some tough losses. All in all, the ladies stuck together and endured to the end.

A few key players who will be greatly missed next year are seniors Kathy Almreuter, Sarah Smith, and Tami Kimball. These ladies lit up the court with their amazing efforts and outstanding leadership through each of their own special ways.

Kathy, Sarah, and Tami -- "Good luck in all your endeavors and may God be with you always!!"

One of the themes for the volleyball season was to "play with your heart." The Cougars played with all their heart giving all the glory to God. Congratulations on a wonderful season and good luck next year!

Reflecting Their Light

We are the light of the world. The Women's basketball team was no different. They were the light of the courts. We all shine in different ways. Whether it is coaching, playing or sitting the bench all of us are important in some way. The Cougar women had a rough season. There were frustrating times and joyous times, eitherway, through it all, they shone through brightly. The over all record is not as good as they all hoped, but what they left this season with was a sense of loyalty, knowing they were all friends. There were little victories throughout the season. Like in the last game of the season. They were losing by twenty points in the last five minutes of the game. They all came together and only lost by eight points. As Rachel Geddes remembers, the players from the bench came up and got it done. The game was close. It's those little things that make the season memorable. Good sportsmanship, good friendships, and the love of the game is what makes Concordia so special. The love of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost is what makes us so successful. It is the light that shines through the Concordia Women's Basketball team. --Julie Barry

Lighting Up The Court!

Being the light of the world is no easy task. It is no easy task lighting up the court either. The Cougars make it look easy though. With their determination and will they make it happen. Concordia light gets shone though these men on a daily basis, either on the practice floor or the game floor. These men put forth their best effort continually. Congratulations to the men who, by using their gifts, entertained the fans and let their lights shine for all to see.

Eric, Ehren, and Ray all look onto the court with intensity. Always waiting to go in and do their part.

Eric passes the ball to a teammate while being guard. It is not only important to score but to play as a team.

The guys line up for the out of bounds play. It is important for the guys to know exactly where they need to go or else the play will not work.

Dear Heather Angel,

You have always been our shining star, and so precious to us. Now as you graduate college it is another "feather in our cap" as you make us even more proud. You are already a success as an artist, some day your art will be well known and bring happiness to others. Good luck in your career, keep God in your heart, and you will be happy in your life! Our Love Always Mom and Dad

Dear Kathy,

Congratulations! You have always been such a blessing from the beginning of balancing the score of three & three, to Josephine and "The coat of many Colors" to all the good and bad times we've had in life. We know God has big plans for you. Love always Dad, Mom and Family

Dear Connie,

Our little "clown" has grown up! You've studied and worked hard over the years to reach this goal - a BA in Elementary Education. Don't stop now, the future is what you make it! God has blessed you in many ways and we pray you will continue with Him as your Guiding Light and follow His path. We are proud of you and love you.

Dad, Mom, Marian, Pete, Maggie, Shirley, Eugene, and Jamie

Dear Lori,

You have always been a special blessing in our lives, and we are very proud of the young woman you've become. May God guide and bless your future.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Dear Bob,

We will never forget the day you took your "first" steps! You were on your own, yet headed for the security of your parents' outstretched arms. Now you are taking some "first" steps again. However, this time you are headed away from us as you begin your new life. May you ever "walk with Jesus" and may He bless you and keep you safe. We are proud of you, Bob!

Love, Mom & Dad

Dear Juanita,

We love you first, for being the Godly person you are, then for the woman, mother, best friend and teacher you've become. You have imparted so much love, caring and sharing to others. So we take this time to say, to you, "God loves you, you are special in his sight."

Your Family

Dear Manuel,
We are thankful God has blessed us with a dear and loving son like you. We are very proud of you. God bless you and with Jesus in your heart you can never fail! Manuel, congratulations on your special day. Love always Mom and Dad

Dear Nichole,
Wow, did these 4 years go by fast! We are so proud of you. What an outstanding teacher you are. You found out because you put the Lord first He made all this possible. You can be proud you worked very hard and you made your dream come true. Now go out and teach all this to your students. Thank you Jesus for our blessing, Nichole. Love, Mom and Dad

Dear Nikkie,
It's only "yesterday" you started school and now you are the "school teacher!" You're "Cleopatra" in the picture for Halloween, to your family, you will always be Queen! We are so proud of you "Binky."

Love, Mom, Dad, and Dave

Dear Erich,
Congratulations on your graduation. We want you to know how proud we are of all your accomplishments. We were very happy when you made the Eagle Scott, but we even more excited now that we have a young son finally realizing his dream to become a teacher. We hope you never lose that enthusiasm to pursue your goals in life.

Love always, Mom, Dad, and George

Dedication

As we discussed the idea of a yearbook and our hopes for this yearbook in particular one issue that came up was the dedication. Traditionally a yearbook is dedicated to a group or a person who had impact on the life of the school it commemorates. With this in mind we respectfully dedicate the 1996 Pillars Yearbook to the graduating class of 1996. They are our future. They have been our example and more importantly our friends throughout the last year and the years preceding. We wish them the best as they leave Concordia to spread their light to new homes, new jobs and new friends.
